Frequently Asked Questions

I'm worried about the international borders not opening in time for my event. Can I postpone if the majority of our guests are coming from overseas?

Should your event have a large number of guests travelling from overseas and international borders remain closed for your event date, we would provide an option for postponement and we will work with you to find a suitable new date. Alternatively our in-house AV team can provide a wide range of services should you want to discuss live streaming your event both nationally and/or internationally.

Can I turn my cocktail reception into a sit down lunch or dinner? What happens if new restrictions mean I have to have less people at my event?

Yes, should your event need to change format due to ongoing NSW physical distancing restrictions, we are happy to work with you to change the format of the event. Please note contracted minimum spends would apply unless government restrictions have forced a reduction in guest numbers or venue capacities, at which time Trippas White Group would reduce their contracted minimum spend to reflect the changes to capacity.

I'm feeling hesitant about proceeding with my wedding based on the current restrictions and the possibility that they will change. What are my options?

We understand your concerns and hesitation with proceeding with your wedding due to the unpredictability of the current climate. The Sydney Opera House venue team and Trippas White Group event specialists will work together with you on the best outcome for your upcoming event. This may be through a postponement or deposit refund or alternatively with an agreed upon format change that is both safe for your guests and also provides reassurance for you, your family and your invited guests. It is our priority to make your wedding a memorable occasion, whilst also being flexible to ongoing recommendations from our governing and industry bodies.
